

FRC Attendance Revisions

Ver 0.3

- 5 strike system.
 - Failure to follow the following rules will result in a strike. After reaching 2 strikes, members will be verbally warned about their misconduct concerning attendance, and parents will be contacted.
 - After the warning, if the member reaches 5 strikes, they are to be removed from the program without possibility of refund.
 - Strikes are reset at the start of every year at kickoff.
- Calling out.
 - Members are to report their upcoming absences at least a day prior to the start of the meeting.
 - Members who report an upcoming absence less than a day before will have their case considered as an emergency, and must fall within the excused absence list to avoid receiving a strike.
 - Members are required to give their reasons for absences in the #Absent channel on slack.
 - If a member states they are uncomfortable with the reason for absence, they are still required to contact a mentor following the above procedure.
 - Members are given a 5 minute grace period to arrive once the meeting starts at its scheduled time.
 - If a member has called in to report a late arrival, they must follow the same day before hour ruling.
 - These same procedures exist for calling out an early exit to the meeting. If members are expecting to leave early, they must make it known the day prior or alert a mentor under emergency circumstances. Emergencies must follow the below list else they will till receive a strike.
 - If members are consistently calling out and missing their schedule, Mentors and admin will contact parents and verify reasons for absences. If absences are not verified by parents, strikes will be given for each unverified absence.
 - When reporting an upcoming absence, members must go through the FRC website and report their absence on the calendar in the absent tab.
 - Reports done through the channel are to be reviewed before meetings by either mentors or program manager, and will be approved or denied by their discretion.
- Offseason Meetings.

FRC Attendance Revisions

Ver 0.3

- During the offseason, meetings are still considered mandatory. Same procedure applies for offseason meetings.
- Preseason
 - During preseason meetings (School Start - Start of Build Season), attendance is still mandatory, same procedure applies.
- Build Season Meetings.
 - During Build season (Kickoff - First Competition), attendance is mandatory as well following the same procedure.
 - Build season requires members to follow a strict shift schedule, according to what they agree on after orientation during pre season or after joining the club during build season.
- Competition Season Meetings.
 - During Competition season (First Competition - Last competition), attendance is mandatory following unique procedure.
 - Competition season requires members to follow a strict shift schedule, according to what they agree on after orientation during pre season or after joining the club during build season.
 - Absences for competitions are expected to be filed at least a week before the scheduled date. Between competitions, general procedure applies.
- Shift Scheduling.
 - Members will follow a strict schedule during build and competition seasons.
 - Schedules are to be decided upon during pre season or immediately after onboarding during build seasons.
 - Full time schedules expect members to attend a minimum of 16 hours every week. Full time members are expected to follow an assigned off day during the build and competition seasons, which is scheduled on a normal meeting weekday (I.e. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday).
 - Full time members are not to use their off day to “make up” for missed meeting hours. Strikes will not be revoked for poor attendance compliance.
 - Full time members are expected to attend the entire Saturday meeting during build and competition season.
 - Part time members follow a much stricter schedule. They are only required to attend a minimum of 10 hours every week during build and competition season.

FRC Attendance Revisions

Ver 0.3

- Recording Strikes.
 - Strikes are tracked and managed by mentors and the Program Manger through the FRC website.
 - If a strike is later deemed unreasonable, strikes are able to be revoked by mentors and program manager.
- Excused Absences.
 - Medical emergencies
 - Major illness symptoms
 - Family emergencies or events (must have confirmation from parent)
 - Extracurricular activities (must be confirmed by school)
 - Educational Needs (Mentor discretion)
 - Mental Health Days
- Educational Needs.
 - Students are able to call out of a meeting for educational needs such as:
 - Low Grades
 - Needing to Study
 - Upcoming due dates
 - When calling out, students are required to reach out and contact mentors to ask about their need.
 - Mentors will decide if the educational need is significant enough to receive an exception.
 - Mentors are to inform the student if their educational
- Mental Health Days
 - Mental health days run on an honor system. If a student requests a mental health day to a mentor then they are to be excused from a meeting. If members are continuously using mental health days to skip meetings, then Mentors are to ask parents if they can be excused. If days cannot be excused and students are abusing mental health days, they receive a strike for each day called out.